

Contract Negotiation and Review

Too many physicians end up with poor contracts and when the job doesn't work out, they end up saddled with heavy costs, burdensome non-compete agreements, and unfair treatment. Spending a few hundred bucks up front to get the contract reviewed is well worth it. Firms listed here are paid advertisers on the site, but have all been vetted by me and your fellow readers.

Contract Diagnostics, a paid advertiser on the blog, is a firm whose entire business is reviewing physician employment contracts. Dozens of blog readers have used the services of Contract Diagnostics and I have yet to get a single complaint. I interviewed Jon Appino here. If I were negotiating an employment or partnership contract, I would hire Contract Diagnostics to review it. They'll even negotiate it if you want. Prices vary but start at $200. Contract Diagnostics is a paid advertiser on the site. Thank you for supporting those who support this site.